

"I want her to come back and live with me," said Larsen.

"Your place is with your husband," ruled the judge. "Go back to your home. Your quarrel is because of the money and nothing else."

"I lived with my husband's mother for a number of years," said Mrs. James C. Marvin, "until I could not stand it any longer. My husband gave me permission to go to my home on a vacation and I told him I would come back to him gladly if he would get one room away from his people. He did not send for me, but entered into an agreement with me to give me $1,500, my share of the property we have. Instead, he has only sent me $225 since last September."

"Your place is in your husband's home," said the judge. "He says he is willing to support you. Take your trunk and go to his home. Go in and take off your hat and start to work; cook his meals or wash the dishes, or anything else there is to do. You will find it very easy to go back to your home if you want to live there. I will continue the case two weeks and you can tell me how it works out by that time."

"We have a motion asking relief from continuing payments," said a lawyer. "The wife of this man has been guilty of misconduct."

"Thrash that out in the divorce court," ruled the judge. "The man has been found guilty of non-support, here and ordered to pay so much a week. So long as the woman remains his wife he must support her."

NOT TO RECALL MILITIA IN THE LA SALLE STRIKE

La Salle, Ill., Aug. 5.—Despite serious rioting here last night, following the departure of state troops sent here to keep order during the cement workers' strike, city officials today declared no attempt would be made to have the militia recalled.

The rioting broke out early last night when half a dozen special deputies at the Oglesby plant started for town. They were met by strikers who hurled bricks at them.

ANOTHER OF BARRETT BOYS IS HEADED FOR JOLIET

The colony of newspaper sluggers in Joliet penitentiary will initiate a new gray brother next week.

All the Barrett boys, who made names for themselves in the service of Chicago newspapers, will be especially interested.

This because Eddie, Hennie and Artie Barret will be joined by their littlest brother, Johnnie.

Conviction of Johnnie Barrett as a receiver of stolen goods took place yesterday. He joins his three brothers Tuesday.

The old mother, who sticks by her boys when all the newspapers have turned on them, has for consolation the fact that Charlie, the brightest and handsomest of her lads, is still outside, and the father, James Barrett, is out on parole.

State's Att'y Hoyne's course toward the Barretts was watched with interest since he took office. This because the Hearst papers backed Hoyne when he ran in 1912, and that was year Eddie Barrett shot Street Car Conductor Frank Witt, Teamster George Hehr, besides stabbing a third man in a North Side saloon. As these killings and stabbings by Eddie Barrett were all committed while he was on the payroll of Hearst's American, at the same time wearing a deputy sheriff's star, it was predicted the Hearst papers would influence Hoyne to go easy on the Barretts. Since that time it's been one Barrett case after another with Hoyne and his battling average stands five trials and four convictions.
